Motors Strike Spreads To Flint, Mich., Factory

1,200 MEN SIT DOWN AS UNION SPREADS DRIVE

Three Other Plants of Fisher Company Hurt by Similar Moves

COUNCIL CALLED SUNDAY

17,000 Other Workers in No. 1 May Follow

FLINT, Mich., Dec. 30.—(UP)

A sit-down strike was called today in Fisher body plant No. 2, which employs 1,200 men and manufactures bodies for Chevrolet. Both companies are divisions of General Motors Corporation.

It was the fourth Fisher body plant engaged in labor difficulties. Strikes are now in progress in plants of the G. M.-affiliated company in Cleveland, O., Kansas City, Mo., and Atlanta, Ga. All manufacture bodies for Chevrolet.

Spokesmen for Fisher Body company admitted labor trouble in the No. 2 plant, but denied an earlier report that plant No. 1, employing 17,000 men, was engaged in a similar strike.

Others May Follow
R. C. Travis, president of the Flint local of the United Automobile Workers of America, announced that the No. 2 plant was "closed 100 per cent."

"And," he added, "I'm having difficulty in holding back the men in the other plant."

Travis said the strike was called after the discharge of three inspectors, all union members, because of their labor affiliations. Fisher company spokesmen had no immediate comment.

The U. A. W. A. backed by funds from the committee for industrial organization, has requested collective bargaining conferences with General Motors and has received acknowledgment of the request from William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president.

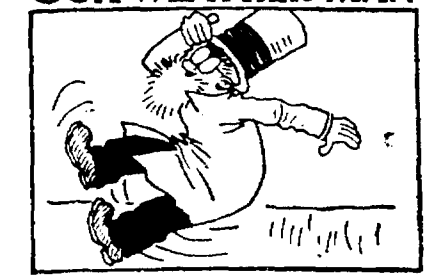

Flint is the heart of the vast General Motors empire. The large Buick plant, on which the corporation was founded, and Chevrolet plants are located here. Approximately 42,000 workers are engaged in automobile manufacture in this industrial center.

Started by 20 Men

After re-checking the situation, Fisher spokesmen said the strike started in a group of about 20 men and spread to other departments. First information, they said, indicated only a small proportion of the 1,200 workers on the day shift were actively engaged in the sit-down.

They termed the statement of (Continued on Page Eight.)

Enlistment May Bring Arrest

AMERICA'S soldiers of fortune, intrepid aviators serving in the Spanish war, are threatened with arrest and trial as congressional leaders seek to strengthen safeguards against U. S. being drawn into war. Representative Sam D. McReynolds, of Tennessee, chairman of the house foreign affairs committee, believes that American citizens who have enlisted in the Spanish conflict have violated a federal statute. Among the aviators now serving in the Spanish war are Bert Acosta, (left) and Eddie Schneider, Jr., shown above. They are serving the Loyalists.

Ohio Educators Vote To Back School Head

WINCHESTER, Dec. 30.—(UP)—Charges of improper conduct brought against C. O. Williams, 47, superintendent of schools here, by four women teachers were dismissed by the board of education at a secret session, it was announced today.

The board's vote to dismiss the charges was 3 to 2.

By the same vote, the board ordered the four teachers to report back to their classrooms on Jan. 4 when the school reopens after the holidays. The teachers walked out after filing affidavits against Williams.

The teachers whose walkout precipitated a brief student strike are Mrs. Dorothy Sinniger and Misses Cynthia Hanley, Beulah Wade and Helen Rowland. They charged Williams with intoxication on the school premises and with having made improper advances to them.

C. H. Wilson, Attorney for the teachers, said he would file formal removal proceedings in Adams county common pleas court against the three board of education members voting to discuss the charges.

Wilson also said he would appeal to State Director of Education E. L. Bowsher.

Members of the board are G. W. Osborne, Kirk Short, McPherson Curdy, Edward Black and Stanley Glasco.

The teachers who filed the affidavits are former pupils of Williams here. They did not announce immediately whether they would return to classes.

HITLER ACTION IS AWAITED BY NAZI SOLDIERS

BERLIN, Dec. 30.—(UP)—Groups of "volunteers" in various parts of Germany—in some districts numbering several thousands—are being held up from going to Spain temporarily pending Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's decision on Germany's future course on non-intervention, qualified foreign sources understood today.

An unofficial but reliable German source admitted that the number of German volunteers now in Spain is about 10,000. He added that he estimated the number of Italians as "somewhat fewer" and the combined Russian and French at perhaps 40,000 to 50,000.

In a letter to employ representatives at the Weirton, W. Va., plant, Weir openly discussed the labor crisis and warned that the "menace of strike threats" is the only obstacle to further recovery in the industry.

WEIR ATTACKS LEWIS' ACTION TO FORM UNIONS

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 30.—(UP)—Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, charged today that John L. Lewis' committee for industrial organization seeks to organize the five billion dollar steel industry "so that it can exact tribute from the steel workers."

AGED MONROE TOWNSHIP MAN KILLS HIMSELF

James Tilly, Five Points, Stands in Front of Home to End Life

NEIGHBORS HEAR REPORT

Ill Health and Loneliness Blamed for Action

Despondency over ill health and loneliness caused James Tilly, 80, life long resident of Five Points, to take his life Tuesday afternoon by firing the charge of a .12 gauge shotgun under his heart.

Tilly had walked to the side of the roadway in front of his home, placed the stock of the gun on the ground, unfastened his clothing placing the muzzle of the gun near his heart, and set off the trigger with a stick.

Neighbors heard the report of the gun. The first to find Mr. Tilly were Mrs. John Davis, mother of Ray W. Davis, county prosecutor, and Mrs. Mayme Troutman.

Relatives said Mr. Tilly has lived alone for the last five years after the death of his wife. There are no children. Two brothers, John of Grange Hall, and another in Oregon, survive.

The body was removed to the F. N. Bowman funeral home in Mt. Sterling pending arrangements for services and burial. Dr. C. E. Bowser, county coroner, investigated.

CRISIS BELIEVED NEAR FOR POPE, SUFFERING PAIN

Pontiff Dictates Letter to Convent Requesting Prayer Be Offered

SPECIAL THRONE PLANNED

Vatican Pessimistic About Recovery of Beloved Man

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 30.—(UP)—Pope Pius, wracked by continuous pain, dictated from his sick bed in the Vatican today a letter to the sisters of the convent of St. Therese, at Lisieux, France, asking them to pray God to grant him courage and strength to conduct the remainder of his life in a manner befitting a pope.

It was understood that the pope's illness was taking a course which indicated that a crisis in his illness might be expected soon. Lights burned in his apartment almost all through the night in token of his intense suffering.

But this morning when Cardinal Pacelli, Vatican secretary of state, entered the apartment—the first visitor, as usual, except for Prof. Amintore Milani, the physician, the pope asked the cardinal to take his dictation of the letter.

Convent Dear to Pope

The convent is particularly dear to the pope because St. Therese was canonized in 1925, soon after his election to the papal throne.

After leaving the apartment, the cardinal refused to say anything except that the pope's condition was unchanged.

Another spokesman said the pope was restless at times during the night because of the intense pain in his leg, swollen by varicose veins. He was suffering, too, from neuritic pains and particularly in the early morning hours suffered from fits of asthmatic coughing.

The semi-official news agency conducted by Monsignor Enrico Pucci announced this afternoon, however, that the pope was appreciably improved after the rupture of several varicose veins and a resultant diminution of pain.

The statement was the most optimistic one from the sick rooms in days.

It said that the pope no longer suffered atrocious pains in his left leg because the swelled veins permitted blood to escape freely, thus relieving the clots. Monsignor Pucci considered that this greatly decreased danger of complications and forecast that if everything proceeded normally the pope's leg might be normal within two months.

May Construct Throne

Mr. Pucci added that Vatican officials are considering the construction of a special papal throne to permit the pope several weeks hence to leave his sick bed and sit with his left leg extended while attending church business. Members of the papal household already have consulted several experts about building the throne, he said.

The fact that the Roman Catholic church has not yet decided to order special prayers in churches, nor to publish daily bulletins on the pope's condition, was accepted by the public here as an indication (Continued on Page Eight)

SERUM RUSHED TO SAVE LIVES OF MAN, WOMAN

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 30.—(UP)—Mary Peterson, comely 29-year-old stenographer, was near death in Northwestern hospital today while fog prevented arrival of a plane bearing life saving serum from Kansas City.

The serum was enroute by train today.

Also critically ill from a mysterious food poisoning was E. B. Voneman, 33, assistant sales manager of the Montana - Dakota Power Co.

Physicians said hope of saving Miss Peterson's life rested with immediate administration of serum.

The young woman is nearly exhausted by ravages of the virulent poison apparently incurred in the Christmas day dinner she prepared for herself and Voneman in the apartment. For 48 hours she has been delirious. Voneman was conceded a better chance for recovery, although his condition was critical.

Physician tried unsuccessfully to obtain serum in the twin cities and from Chicago. The serum is used to combat a poisoning known as botulism, caused by a bacillus in canned foods.

POLICE SEARCH FOR "TIM" AS ROUGH BANDIT

Puget Sound Home Remains Unguarded as Officers Assist Family

TACOMA, Wash., Dec. 30

—(UP)—Dr. W. W. Mattson has obtained the $28,000 with which to ransom his 10-year-old son Charles who was kidnapped Sunday night. A reliable source said the doctor was ready to open negotiations with the abductor.

News that Dr. Mattson had succeeded in raising the cash demanded in the ransom note came just when the sheriff's office announced search had been started for a man known to have been missing from his home since Sunday.

The man is a foreigner, it was said.

The man is definitely a suspect in the Mattson case, Sheriff John Bjorkland said.

Bjorkland said he received a tip that the man approached an underworld figure and invited him to join in a "smash". The man refused and after the Mattson boy was abducted mentioned the incident to a party who passed the information on to the officers.

Answers Description

The sheriff indicated that the "foreigner" answered in many particulars the description officers have of "Tim", the bearded swarthy man who broke into the Mattson home and carried Charles away after tossing a crumpled pocket-torn kidnap note on the floor.

That the "foreigner" is the man suspected of trying to break into the home of John G. Franklin Sr., presumably to kidnap his five-year-old son, was intimated by officers. Two efforts were made to enter the Franklin house, near that of Dr. Mattson, and after one attempt a ladder was found placed against the house and reaching to a bedroom window.

Personal Ad Cited

Meanwhile official circles indicated confidence that Dr. Mattson was ready to deal with the abductor. A personal ad which appeared in the Seattle Times was believed to have been his first overture to the kidnaper. It read: "Mable—Please give us your name—Ann."

Dr. Mattson denied he knew anything about the notice but persons close to him said he did not appear so worried today and indicated the ad was his method of telling the kidnaper he was ready to pay over the $28,000 at any designated rendezvous.

The ransom note left in the Mattson home Sunday night by the bearded kidnaper who broke in and stole Charles specified that the parents were to make the first move—an advertisement in a newspaper classified section.

This was the means followed in last year's kidnapping of George Weyerhaeuser, 10, a playmate of Charles, which resulted in a $200,000 ransom. (Continued on Page Eight)

YOUTHS' DRIVING RIGHTS SUSPENDED AT HEARING

Two Circleville youths were relieved of their rights to drive automobiles until they are 18 years of age by Juvenile Judge C. C. Young, Tuesday afternoon.

The youths are Maynard Keaton, 17, and Merle Ankrom, 16, both of Beantown.

They were brought before the judge on complaints of falsely swearing they were 18 years of age to procure chauffeurs' licenses.

Dwight Steele was elected chairman of the troop committee, F. E. Barnhill secretary-treasurer. Other members are H. O. Grant, Dr. Phillips and Mr. Leist.

The first meeting has been called for Jan. 18 at which time all boys interested in joining should report.

STORM LASHES KANSAS AREA, INJURING MAN

MARYSVILLE, Kan., Dec. 30.—(UP)—A tornado struck a rural section near here early today, damaging houses and farm buildings, uprooting trees and disrupting telephone and electrical service. One man was injured.

Buildings on the farms of John Grabbout and Tom Harry were damaged. Grabbout's back was injured when he was struck by a flying timber.

Chief of Police Tom Blodgett, who toured the section, said power and telephone poles were leveled for a mile and a half. Centres of the storm apparently was about eight miles east of Marysville.

Window panes in most of the farm buildings in the vicinity were shattered. Blodgett said hundreds of trees were uprooted.

Heavy rain driven by winds near tornado velocity fell in Marysville and much of northern Kansas last night and today.

SEN. COPELAND TO LEAD DRIVE FOR MORE CARE

Investigation of Five Recent Crashes, Killing 27, to be Started at Once

NEW EQUIPMENT STRESSED

Conference of All Operators May be Ordered

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30—(UP)—The federal government today launched a three-way drive to reduce airline accidents which so far this year have taken 67 lives — highest toll on record.

The drive encompasses: 1—Promise of prompt congressional investigation of five recent air crashes, four of which resulted in 27 deaths.

2—A demand that airline operators who have not already done so bring their equipment up to date.

3—A definite plan by the Department of Commerce to call a conference of representatives of all operators, the army, navy, coast guard and the national advisory committee for aeronautics, to formulate a program to increase safety in aerial transportation.

The congressional investigation was promised by Sen. Royal S. Copeland, D. N. Y., chairman of the senate commerce committee.

"I am distressed by these accidents," he told the United Press from his home in New York, "and as soon as I get back to Washington I intend to arrange for the head of the air companies involved in recent crashes to come and tell us about them. We want to know whether bad flying orders, defective planes or inadequate safety facilities on the ground are responsible."

Copeland's committee, which urged thorough reorganization of the federal bureau of air commerce in a preliminary report submitted last June, is preparing final recommendations for new air safety.

EITEL CHARGED WITH OPERATING GAME OF CHANCE

Donald Eitel, E. Main street, waived examination before Mayor W. J. Graham Tuesday night in police court and was bound to the grand jury under $400 bond on a charge of operating a dice game on Dec. 27 at the rear of an E. Main street property. He furnished bond.

The charge was filed with Mayor Graham by William Essick, S. Court street. Names of five persons alleged to have participated in the game are listed in the charge.

Fred Smith, 34, of Logan street, was fined $10 and costs, fined suspended, by the mayor, on an assault and battery charge filed by Virgil Miller, Elm avenue. Police said the charge grew out of a disturbance Dec. 26 at a south-end beer parlor. Smith made arrangements to settle the costs.

JIM ROOSEVELT TO RESIGN JOB TO ASSIST DAD

Odds and Ends to be Task, Capital Hears; Young Man May Work With West

SECRETARIES NEED HELP

No Explanation Given By President's Office

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30—(UP)—James Roosevelt, eldest son of the president, will quit the insurance business to become his father's aide, it was learned today.

The president described "Jim-mie's" task as looking out after "odds and ends" but beyond that offered no further explanation. White House attaches shied from discussing the matter, considering it a personal concern of the Roosevelt family.

It was believed that young Roosevelt, who has had considerable political experience in spite of his years, might be called on to act as liaison officer between Capitol Hill and the White House, working with Charles West, under-secretary of the interior, who has served in that capacity for many months.

He might also help the White House secretariat with its heavy burden, increased by the death of Louis McHenry Howe, senior secretary and political mentor of Mr. Roosevelt for a quarter of a century. Howe was not replaced.

The work that normally went to Howe's office since his death has been apportioned between the offices of Secretaries Marvin H. McIntyre and Stephen T. Early.

Of Mr. Roosevelt's four sons, James has been most frequently with his father. He was active in both presidential campaigns. In 1936 he helped carry Massachusetts. He was a voting resident of that state and more than once was hailed as gubernatorial timber.

AUTO INJURES CATHERINE WARD AT MAIN, COURT

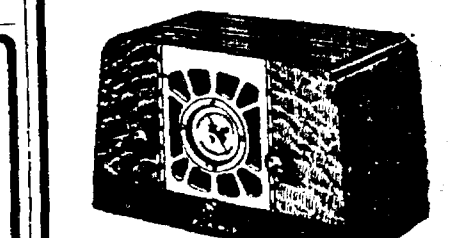

Catherine Ward, 21, of South Bloomfield, waitress at Hanley's Sandwich Shoppe, suffered cuts and bruises on the face and knees Tuesday about 6 p. m. when she was struck by the auto of Finley Jones, 311 E. Union street, while she was crossing Court street at Main.

She was walking across Court street from the southwest corner to the east when struck by the car. Mr. Jones was turning into S. Court street from W. Main street. The accident occurred during the blinding rain storm.

Mr. Jones said he had stopped at the corner waiting for the traffic light to change and was driving slowly when the accident occurred.

NAVY GETS 12 HUGE BOMBERS, 164 TO FOLLOW

First Group Delivered to Be Assigned to Hawaiian Duty

TO FLY TO PEARL HARBOR

Huge Bomb Load Possible in Modern Aircraft

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 30.—(UP)—Strengthening Uncle Sam's front line of defense, 12 giant naval patrol bombers — "battle cruisers of the air" and the last word in air boats—will assume their place in the U. S. Navy's air fleet early in 1937, naval officials announced.

The planes are the first completed of 176 now under construction in San Diego. They will be flown to their base at Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, in January, naval officials at the North Island Naval Air Station said. Others will be flown to bases assigned them as they are completed.

Especially designed for long flights over open seas, the huge, 15-ton monoplanes are said to be the most advanced ships of their type anywhere in the world. The 12 now completed are known as PBV-1's and are part of a group of 60 such planes for which the navy contracted with Consolidated Aircraft Corp., in 1935.

116 More to Be Built

The next group of 50, a model with a few variations from the PBV-1's is being built by Consolidated under another contract and will be known as PBV-2. Sixty-six more planes, PBV-3, were contracted for in November, and Consolidated officials say they probably will be completed in the summer of 1938.

The three contracts total approximately $19,000,000 and, according to consolidated officials, mark the greatest peacetime construction of large air boats ever undertaken.

The air boats are almost identical with the XP3Y-1 monoplane, commanded by Lieut. Commander Knicker McGinnis, which set a world airline distance record and a world broken line distance record for its class in a non-stop flight from Cristobal Harbor, Canal Zone, to San Francisco Bay, Oct. 14-15, 1935. The airline distance was 3,281 miles and the broken line distance, 3,443 miles.

Called Without Equal

The planes represent the combined developments of navy and civilian engineers and are said to be unequalled by any military patrol bomber now in service.

They are described as capable of sustained flights of more than 24 hours and can land on extremely rough water without danger of capsizing.

However, danger of forced landing is said to be negligible, as the planes have shown in tests that they can fly with only one of their twin power plants in commission.

Built with a rugged, smoothly curving hull and a high, arched tail surface, the bombers are constructed especially for lone, over-seas hops. The huge wings spread more than 100 feet. On each wing tip is a retractable pontoon which is let down for landings but which folds into the wing when the plane is in flight.

Huge Bomb Load Possible

Armament arrangements have not been disclosed, but it is believed the planes are capable of carrying a bomb load of at least 4,000 pounds.

Powered by two double-bank radial engines, with a horsepower rating of approximately 1,000 each, the bombers are expected to have a cruising speed of at least 150 miles an hour, with a top speed much higher.

Two groups of experienced fliers, each composed of six officers and 25 enlisted men have been brought to North Island Naval Air Station from Pearl Harbor for instruction in handling the new craft. They will fly the planes to Hawaii.

Woman's Mosquito Lie Wins Burlington Title

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—(UP)—A "diamond studded" medal for the best lie of 1936 went today to a Michigan farmer's wife, Mrs. Gale Barnhouse.

Mrs. Barnhouse's story of the mosquito that dined on livestock brought her first place in the 1936 Burlington Liars' club contest and the unofficial title of world's best liar.

The mosquito described by Mrs. Barnhouse started out young on chicks, advanced through roosters, turkeys, calves, and cows. One day it tried to "tough old mule named Maud."

Half way down the mosquito's guile, Maud unleashed a terrific kick, broke the mosquito's neck and saved the town.

Fisher Employees Reject Mediation Proposals, Cheer Leaders

FLINT PARLEY CALLED

Record Demand For Cars Brings Crisis

CLEVELAND, Dec. 30.—(UP)—Conflict between the United Automobile Workers Union and the General Motors corporation sped toward a showdown today.

Striking employees of the Fisher Body company, General Motors subsidiary, rejected mediation proposals and cheered their leaders' announcement that their dispute had become a battle with the huge parent organization and could not be settled locally.

Workers in all branches of the booming automobile industry anxiously awaited outcome of a conference at Flint, Mich., Jan. 3 at which leaders in General Motors plants will vote on the terms of a collective bargaining agreement the union will propose to the corporation.

Backed by John L. Lewis' committee for industrial organization, the automobile union threatened widespread strikes unless General Motors executives granted demands for collective bargaining conferences.

The threat comes at a time when General Motors units are faced with a record demand for cars. At Flint, where more than 46,000 workers are employed in four units, Chevrolet established all-time sales and production records in the last few months. Buick had new high records in November and December. Employment is at its peak.

Walkouts in Fisher plants here and at Kansas City and Atlanta, Ga., affecting nearly 10,000 workers, already have pinched the Chevrolet output. Normally, the Cleveland plant manufactures 27,000 Chevrolet bodies weekly.

COUNTIAN DIES AFTER ILLNESS OF ONE YEAR

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon for Charles Bryant, 58, who died Monday night at his home near New Holland. Burial will be in the New Holland cemetery.

Mr. Bryant had been in ill health about a year.

Mr. Bryant had spent all of his life in the New Holland community.

Mrs. Bryant died some nineteen years ago.

Surviving are six daughters and three sons: Mrs. Frances Arnold, of Clarksburg; Mrs. Dudley Briggs, New Holland; Mrs. George Donahue, Madison Mills; Mrs. Ernest Curry, Columbus; Misses Kathleen and Ruth at home, and Paul, Charles and Rodgers at home. One brother, Frank, resides in New Holland. He is also survived by three sisters, Mrs. Harley Friece, Washington C. H., Mrs. John Mallow, New Holland, and Mrs. Lon McAdams, of Cleveland. There are four surviving grandchildren.

DAME HOUSTON, LONDON SOCIETY LEADER, IS DEAD

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(UP)—Dame Fanny Lucy Houston, one of Great Britain's wealthiest women and one of its most colorful, died last night after a few days' illness of complications resulting from bronchitis.

Almost to her last hour, she conducted her affairs, including her $28,000,000 fortune and her exciting magazine "Saturday Review."

She was believed to be between 65 and 70 years old, but she kept her age secret. She was divorced in 1895 from her first husband, Sir Theodore Brinckman, and six years later she married the 9th Lord Byron, who died in 1917.

All her life, since her girlhood as Fanny Radnall, daughter of the late Thomas Radnall, Dame Lucy — as she styled herself — lived up to the motto she finally adopted formally: "No one attacks me with impunity."

Far from it — she herself, with a force that matched her nearly 200 pounds, slashed right and left at people she did not like, in ordinary life and in politics, and particularly at Ramsay MacDonald, former prime minister.

THE HOLIDAYS

THIS genial, colorful season of man's calendar is so rich in possibilities that there scarcely is time enough to realize them.

For weeks the approach of Christmas
Day is watch, the advent becoming fast
and faster as the last few days rush by.
Then as the gay litter of the festival is swept away thoughts turn to the passing of the year and the coming of new opportunities.

That week between two events of significance is a week out of life. It is the time when parties make long nights and short days, a period for reaction, a space wherein the world is loosing the ties of the months that are gone and planning a new year of activity and aspiration. Unconsciously men see in the revolution of the seasons an analogy with life itself and the eternal sentiment of the dying and the new-born colors the hours and challenges
the thoughts.

Birthdays are hard to identify clearly,
but the processing of Christmasides and New Year days stretches memorably away with a distinctness no other of the year's recurring events can match.

After the mellowness of Christmas, reflections on the passing time. After the magnificence of the festival, the dedication to new labors. After the sweet leisure and devotion of the Nativity, the girding for the tasks of life. Resolution follows relaxation, and the two moods complement each other, and give that necessary contrast
which spells convictions.

It is a time when humanity permits its heart to speak; it opens wide the door to high purpose. It is the twilight time when men find opportunity to gaze within and strike a moral balance which, hopefully,
may serve the New Year.

TAKING STOCK

THE first days of the new year are a period of anxiety in many business circles. The boss may step high on New Year's Eve, and sing out his 1937 greetings with a cheerful heart. But perhaps down in his boots, he is worrying about his annual inventory. Will there be some of the good old black ink to rejoice his heart, or must his year's results be recorded in sorrowful red?

One thing seems sure, that for most concerns the figures of 1936 will look better than those of 1935. The astonishing increase in holiday trade ought to carry
many of them over into the top of an honest profit.

Usually when people work hard and intelligently and deal honestly, the fates of life seem to help them, and the returning tide of good times is cheering them on today.

A mother's love is greater than a wife's.

MOVE TO KEEP U. S. OUT OF WAR

WASHINGTON—There was more to the Administration's gold "sterilization"
move than just applying the brakes to stock market speculation.

That was the primary aim. But also playing a big part in the maneuver was the idea that the $7,000,000,000 of foreign money invested in the U. S. is a serious threat to the nation's neutrality, in the event of a European conflagration.

In view of the present powder-keg state of affairs in Spain and the Far East, the President and his advisers consider it far-sighted policy to take every precautionary measure to avoid U. S. entanglement should an explosion occur.

The first thing the European powers
would do when war broke out would be to sequester the funds and stocks of their nationals invested in Wall Street. This capital would be used to buy war goods and essential raw materials, thus circumventing the Johnson Act banning loans to debt defaulters.

Seven billion dollars is a great deal of money. If it were thrown into American industry, it would create a tremendous boom which would be next to impossible
to control, once it got started.

Business men, farmers, labor would strenuously resist efforts to curb this war
trade and its lush profits. The combatants,
shrewdly playing on these economic forces,
would offer more tempting orders in exchange for credits and loans.

This is the vicious circle that helped embroil the U. S. in the World War. A fundamental principle of the President's foreign policy is to prevent a repetition of the tragedy.

The foreign gold "sterilization" was a
step toward that end.

SOLID WOOD

Veteran members of the Capitol Police force are chucking over a hazing they gave a gullible recruit.

Fresh from the hinterland and wearing a new uniform with a bright badge, the rookie was taking his job of protecting the Capitol Building very seriously. He was especially concerned over the erection of the elaborate inauguration grandstand in front of the building.

He was watching trucks unload great
piles of lumber one morning when an older
member of the force approached him.

"Have you measured this lumber yet,
buddy?"

"Measured it? No. Am I supposed to measure it?"

"You better not let the Lieutenant know
you haven't measured all these piles of lumber."

The rookie scurried off, found a ruler,
and went to work measuring, counting,
and figuring up the board feet of pile after pile. He worked at it all day.

At the end of his shift, 3:30 P. M., he brought in a report and handed it to the Lieutenant.

"That was quite a job, sir," he said,
"and I'm glad it's over. The next load doesn't come till 4 o'clock—the next man's turn."

How to Keep Resolution to Stop Smoking

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THERE ARE only a very few resolutions people make on the first of the year, of which abstinence from alcohol and tobacco
are the most prominent.

Those who wish to make
a resolution, whether good or bad, to stop smoking, have their paths somewhat eased for them
by Dr. John L. Dorsey of Baltimore, who has found a way to break
the habit without any physical or mental suffering.

Whether or not tobacco does any permanent harm to the body is a matter of debate. Certainly it does no good, and may have functional disturbances in the heart and in the digestive system.

The doctor has found that by the use of lobelia, or Indian tobacco, people can break off the regular tobacco habit almost without noticing it. The preparation of lobelia used is lobelia sulphate. The best way to use this is to have the patient smoke as much as he likes
until the mid-day meal is eaten,
and then use one-eighth grain of lobelia sulphate immediately after the meal. Whenever there is a strong desire to smoke, another dose of the same kind is used. The patient decides when a dose is necessary, and for how many days

he needs to keep up the substitution.
Usually within a week all
desire for tobacco has disappeared.

According to Dr. Dorsey, it is not easy to get an overdose of lobelia because nausea prevents such overdoses.

It is said by those who use it
that the first symptom noticed is an increase in acuteness of smell and taste. One man who had smoked 40 cigarettes daily for 15 years said that three days after he quit he was tasting and smelling
things that he had almost forgotten.

Smells Tobacco

One thing that the reformed
smoker smells the easiest is another smoker. He has lost his protective adaptation.

Appetite shows prompt improvement. Nervous young women appear to be completely changed as well as tense, active business men.
The nose and throat particularly
seem clear when freed of smoke,
and also the chronically coated tongue of the heavy smoker loses
its covering. This applies particularly to the very heavy smokers—
those who use what is obviously an excessive amount, 20, 30 or 40 cigarets or 10 cigars a day.

For the milder smoker it is not necessary to use any substitute, as anybody can stop smoking if he has the slightest amount of will power, as I have proved over and over again to my own personal satisfaction.

The BLOODHOUNDS BAY

By WALTER S. MASTERMAN
COPYRIGHT: RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

From time to time the colonel shot a glance at the young detective.

"NERVES—that accounts for Reid's leaving your house," Selden told Graham. "It reminds me of a true story of a student at one of our leading hospitals. He was in the Common room and they were all telling ghost stories. Someone dared him to go to the dissecting
room, which was down a long corridor. He went and didn't return.
When the others got alarmed they went there—he was dead."

"What killed him?" Graham
asked, his somber eyes fixed on the other.

"He had heard some noise, probably a mouse or rat, had turned to run, and his coat had caught on a hook beside the table used for dissecting."

"Rather a gruesome yarn, but I don't see what bearing it has on this case," Graham said stiffly.

"An example of nerves, that's
all. One can play on people's nerves sometimes for a joke and
the consequences are fatal."

"In your profession nerves must be a handicap."

"Possessing nerves, certainly,
but the knowledge that others
have them has often been of great use."

Ramdas entered with drinks,
and set an old Chinese tray on a table, withdrawing without a word.

The Colonel helped Selden, and
while the latter was drinking,
poured out half a glass of neat
whiskey and drank it off.

"I told the inspector that I would bring the hounds along," he said in a more cheerful tone.

"They should be able to follow the track of Miss Lawrence and her charges." There was a sneer in the voice that called for comment.

"You think, then, that she has had a hand in it?"

"Surely that's your province," Selden took a bold course.

"Reid was telling me of a wonderful smoking room you have in the roof; perhaps he was romanc-
ing. He said one could get a good view of the neighborhood."

"Would you care to see it?"
Graham asked suavely.

Selden finished his drink. "Very much. You see, I don't know much about this country round
here, and it might give me an idea
of where the missing people have gone."

The Colonel led the way to the roof, up the stairs from the gallery, and threw the door open.
The view was rendered indistinct
by the mist that had developed
after the storm, but the village
could be seen in the valley below,
and the pile of the Abbey rising
like a dream picture from a thin
bluish vapor that eddied in wisps round the base. Woodland intersected with meadows rose in un-
dulating billows from the vale,
and the stream showed like a silver thread hidden at times by trees. A watery sun illuminated
the landscape, making it faint and unreal like a Corot picture.

"On a fine day this must be a wonderful view," Selden said,
leaning his arms on the window
ledge and carefully examining the shutters that could be pushed
from their sockets in the framework, and were of steel. Colonel Graham stood beside him, pointing out the various places of interest.

"If you have seen enough, Selden, well, the hounds. Coats has two of them ready. The fresher the scent the better."

They were walking towards the door, Selden leading, but at the entrance the detective wheeled suddenly, and his quiet, uncertain manner was gone. The face that met the Colonel's was very stern.

"Colonel Graham, of what are you afraid?"

The question was tapped out
like a pistol shot, and for a moment the other was taken off his guard. He almost staggered back,
and fear leapt to his eyes, unmistakable and urgent terror.

Then he recovered himself with an obvious effort. "Afraid? I don't know what you mean—are you trying to be funny or just rude?"

Selden's eyes were on him still,
gravely, almost pityingly. "You won't tell me—I am sorry for many things."

Graham laughed uneasily.
"Whatever made you have such an absurd idea? I've been a soldier all my life."

"Exactly—that is why I wondered. You have faced danger—I don't doubt your courage for a moment—but when a brave man
takes the precautions you have done, it makes one wonder."

"Precautions? I don't understand you," Graham blustered, his nerves restored now.

Selden shrugged his shoulders.
"I am genuinely sorry—I might have helped you." He led the way without another word, and a constraint came between them.

"You agree to use the blood-hounds?" the Colonel said when they reached the study.

"Certainly, we can't neglect any method."

"Very well, then, we'll go."

The tramp over the fields was not very pleasant, for both men remained silent, immersed in their thoughts. From time to time the Colonel shot a glance at the young detective in which anger and fear were mixed. Coats held the hounds in leash, and as he was in earshot confidential conversation
was impossible.

Both men were glad when they emerged at the bank of the lake,
where the hounds lifted their heads and gave tongue, as they do
when reaching water.

The great gateway stood open,
and James came hurrying forward to meet them. His face went a ghastly yellow at the sight of the hounds, but neither man appeared to notice anything. The Colonel spoke roughly.

"Take us to Miss Lawrence's
room at once," he ordered.

"Yes, sir," James replied, eying
the hounds with disgust as they strained forward.

They went up the stairs, James
leading, and Coats behind.

"This is Miss Lawrence's room,"
he said, throwing the door open.

The Colonel had taken charge of the affair with feverish energy.
He hunted round for some garment or article belonging to the girl, cursing under his breath
when he found that everything had been removed. James had remained in the sitting room, and Coats was in the corridor holding the hounds ready.

Selden found a coat on a hanger
and called, "James, is this Miss Lawrence's?"

"Yes, sir," James replied, examining the coat.

"Yes, I recognize it," the Colonel said eagerly. "I saw her wearing
it the other day—I wonder why
she left it behind?" He summoned Coats and let the bloodhounds take the scent. They would have torn it, but were still muzzled.

"Are you armed, Colonel?" Sel-
den asked quietly.

"Armed? Of course not—why should I be?"

"One never knows—we are not eggs, larva, pupa and adult. The queen bee develops in 16 days, the worker in 21 and the drone in 25.

"What is the meaning of this?"
Graham turned furiously on Selden.

"The bloodhounds never lie," the
detective replied firmly.

Coats had dragged the hounds
back and closed the iron gates,
standing calmly waiting for orders.

"You are not suggesting that Miss Lawrence and the children have been murdered and placed in the coffin?" the Colonel said hysterically. All the strong man in him seemed turned to water.

"We had better get out of this
—it is not a cheerful place," Selden said, placing his hand on the Colonel's shaking shoulder.

They made a hurried and rather undignified exit from the place.

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up to a day that just could not make up its mind as to whether it was Spring or Winter. Personal inclination being toward Spring did root heartily
for that side, winning some moments of sunshine. Coffee, a glance at the page one headlines and then to the plant on foot, the wagon being in the hospital with the bearing plague.
Caught between Christmas and New Year's, the plant is an overly quiet place, so tarried only briefly before indulging in the early morning ville inspection.

Here comes Milt Friedman,
whose brother Ted did hear on Eddie Cantor's program Sunday night, and there goes Walk Baughman, who has been in the theatrical business for 51 years.
Received a generous portion of John Carle's birthday cake and mighty good it was. Visited by Ralph Marshall, who retires as sheriff of Allen county January
4. Brought with him a beautiful target pistol, the same as the German team used in leading the world at the Olympic games in Berlin last Summer.

Industry almost everywhere
has restored wage cuts long since and this Christmas season
distributed millions in bonuses
to employees. Yet Circleville's council has made no move to restore to firemen and policemen
the wage cuts they took at the worst of the depression. Considering the property and lives
they protect and the chances
they take it seems $90 a month
for firemen and $100 a month
for policemen is not enough.

Wonder how turned out the picture of the scrivener taken by Ernie Hill at the S. Bloomfield-Ashville fox hunt. Hope the mud shows, for have not been so pleasantly dirty in a long time. Did hear of that famous "Believe It Or Not" fox
hunt conducted by the Brotherhood of Mt. Pleasant church on January 22, 1920. That was the one in which 21 of the little red animals, scores of crows, 50

hawks and an American eagle
were captured by men on foot and carrying clubs. Sleet that started falling in the morning
brought the birds to earth and
they could not fly, only walk,
and were inside the ring at the finish. Personally would not believe the tale until investigation
of the records showed that the drive was sponsored by a church.

That glassy look in the eyes,
brought on by too much food
and sweets of the Yuletide, is beginning to disappear and soon
we should all be back to somewhere normal.

Heard much comment on the Western airliner disaster, but only a word or two about the great automobile toll in this state. Well, someday we may become as hardened to airplane fatalities as we are to those on the highway.

Home late, after attending the

Dinner Club Entertained By Mr. and Mrs. McGhee

Contract Bridge Adds To Evening Party In Williamsport

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McGhee, Williamsport, were hosts to the members of their dinner club Tuesday evening at the Wardell party home.

Immediately following the dinner, which was served at 6:30 o'clock, the guests went to the McGhee home in Williamsport where contract bridge was the diversion of the evening. Several rounds of playing resulted in high score prizes being awarded Mr. and Mrs. Russell McDill. Mrs. Harry Dunlap and Edward Anderson each received traveling prizes. Mr. and Mrs. William Radcliff, who were guests of the club, were presented with an attractive gift.

Those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Radcliff, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Hunsicker of Circleville, Mr. and Mrs. McDill, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Metzger, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dunlap, Mr. and Mrs. White Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. George LeMay, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Anderson of Williamsport, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bowers of Ashville, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Baker of Wilmington, and Mr. and Mrs. McGhee.

Mr. and Mrs. McDill will entertain the club at the next meeting.

Skinner-Dudleson

The marriage of Miss Ernestine Skinner, of Mt. Sterling, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Skinner, to Mr. Carl Dudleson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Dudleson, of Circleville, is being announced by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Long, of Mt. Sterling, with whom the bride makes her home.

The single ring service was read Saturday evening, Dec. 26, at 6 o'clock, before an improvised altar of ferns in the south living room of the bride's home.

The Rev. P. A. Harlan, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, of Derby, was the officiating minister.

The bride was attired in a white transparent velvet gown, cut on princess lines, with leg-o-mutton sleeves fitting tightly below the elbow, and cut in a point over the hands. She used white accessories and wore a shoulder bouquet of red roses and sweet peas. She was attended by Miss Gladys Crawford, of Mt. Sterling, who wore black crepe with black accessories, and carried yellow roses.

George Miller, of Circleville, served as best man.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held for the members of the immediate families and the bridal party. The bride is a graduate of the Monroe township high school, class of '33. Mr. Dudleson is engaged in farming, and after March 1, the couple will reside on the Dudleson farm near Mt. Sterling.

ACY HALL DEFEATS BOB BLAKE IN FEATURE BOUT OF C. A. C. CARD

SHERMAN DROPS ANDERSON WITH KICK TO JAW

Hulse and Seimer Win Boxing Contests From Local Boys

COON IN NEXT SHOW

Wyman and Eckener Grunt to 30-Minute Draw

Stacy Hall, 173-pound favorite of Circleville wrestling crowds, put Bob Blake, willing Toledoan, out of the way Tuesday evening in two fall out of three on a C. A. C. card. Despite the inclement weather, a good crowd attended the show.

Hall lost the first fall in 13 minutes after a series of slams and dropkicks. Blake hurt Hall's shoulder in winning this fall, and started to work on the shoulder in the second round, only to have Hall fasten a hook scissors that seemed to hurt the Toledoan. This fall took only seven minutes.

Blake was punishing Hall with a series of kicks, but when he missed one, the Columbusite was on top for the third fall in four minutes.

The crowd was pleased. Hall having more supporters than Blake, although both lads put on a good show.

Sherman Has Advantage
Pete Sherman, Kansas City, had a weight advantage on John Anderson, willing St. Louis grunter, and pinned his foe with a dropkick in 27 minutes of their scheduled 30-minute scrap.

Jim Wyman and Hugo Eckener, two behemoths, fought 30 minutes to a draw. Little damage was done.

Henry Hill, who defeated Eddie Watson a week ago, refereed the grunt bouts.

Shirley Hulse, Jackson township youngster, clouted Jimmy Arledge, Circleville, to the canvas half a dozen times in their four-round match, but couldn't keep his foe down. Arledge, who had worked all day, was tired and his defense provided Hulse with a splendid opening for a fast fight.

Failure of Arledge to stay down for a count hurt his chances. As soon as he hit the floor he bounced back up again, and several times Hulse smacked him while he was still on one knee.

It is probable the boys will be re-matched.

Seimer Again
Jimmy Seimer made it two in a row over Jimmy Emerine in the curtain-raiser with a clean-cut margin.

Emerine's nose was bleeding and an ear was cut during the fray.

Ralph Wallace referred the matches.

Next week another mixed card will be offered with a Tennessee mountaineer, accompanied by a raccoon, putting on part of the show.

ALL-STAR TEAM LISTS SIX FROM AMERICAN LOOP

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 30—(UP)—Six players from the American League and four National League players were named on the Sporting News 1936 all-star baseball team by the 211 members of the Baseball Writers Association.

Lou Gehrig of the Yankees polled the most votes, 207 out of 211. The all-star lineup:

LF Joe Medwick, Cardinals
CF Earl Averill, Indians
RF Mel Ott, Giants
1B Lou Gehrig, Yankees
2B Charley Gehringer, Tigers
SS Luke Appling, White Sox
3B Frank Higgins, Athletics
C Bill Dickey, Yankees
P Carl Hubbell, Giants
P Dizzy Dean, Cardinals.

New Age Limit Voted for Athletes

COLUMBUS, Dec. 30—(UP)—Advocates of a reduced age limit for participation by Ohio scholastic athletes today have scored a victory over one of the most drastic rules revisions in the recent history of the Ohio High School Athletic Association.

The results of a state-wide poll were announced here today by Commissioner H. R. Townsend. The most significant rule changes regarded the age of athletes.

The new age rule which is effective Sept. 1, 1937 reads:

"All pupils shall become ineligible on their 20th birthday. The penalty for violation may be suspension."

Under the old rule contestants who were "under 20" at the beginning of the half of the school year

Sportsmen Nominate Four For President

Two Circleville men and two Pickaway county farmers were nominated Tuesday night for the presidency of the Pickaway Farmer's and Sportman's organization at meeting held at the Elk's club.

Those nominated were Ed Rausenberger and C. C. Watts, city, Virgil May, Walnut township, and Loring Hoffman, Saltcreek township. Others nominated were Sam Scott, Ashville, vice president; B. S. Millar, South Bloomfield, and Malcolm Parrett, city, treasurer, and Harry Bartholomew, secretary. Next meeting of the club will be held Jan. 12.

Big Noise in Big Ten

H. E. Betz, president of the club, named Harry Griner, E. W. Weiler and Ed Kreisel on a committee to select a place for holding the annual banquet usually in February or March. Places under consideration for the banquet are Memorial Hall and the Elk home.

Mr. Betz announced the cottage at the canal park had been purchased for $125 and will be renovated by WPA. A caretaker will be placed at the park by the state.

Purchase of game for 1937 was delayed until a later meeting when reports can be obtained of the sale of licenses during 1936. Funds from license fees are expected to surpass all previous years.

Drive Dates Discussed
A lengthy discussion was held on fox drives. Some members believed the drives so far this year were being held too early and would be more successful late in January or in February. The most successful drives of previous years were held in these months, they said.

Rabbits recently released by the state at the game preserve on the farm of Harry Montelius, Kingston pike, are traveling in all directions, sportsmen learned. One tagged rabbit was killed by a hunter at least two miles from the preserve.

The club received $2.55 from L. C. Taylor, Ashville, as its share of the sale of fishing flies sold to members.

Labeled one of the greatest basketball finds in a decade, Louis B. Boudreau, sophomore forward, is starring for University of Illinois. Coach Doug Mills has built his team around the brilliant young shotmaker who was chosen three times all-state forward when playing for Thornton high school at Harvey, Illinois.

OHIO U. MEETS RESERVE FIVE IN BIG BATTLE
COLUMBUS, Dec. 30—(UP)—Ohio university, the early season choice for the Buckeye conference championship on the basis of the form its dazzling sophomore quintet displayed during the closing weeks of the 1935-36 campaign, will receive the first of a series of gruelling tests tonight when it meets Western Reserve at Cleveland.

The contest headlines a meager three game mid-week program. In the other battles Ohio State engages Southern California at Los Angeles and Marshall tangles with Newark U. at Newark, N. J.

Ohio U. experienced little difficulty in taking the three contests it played before Christmas. The Bobcats turned back Bliss 55 to 20; Glenville 49 to 40 and Marietta, the defending Ohio conference champion, 40 to 31.

GORILLA JONES HAPPY TO WIN TITLE CHANCE
MILWAUKEE, Dec. 30—(UP)—This is the story of a fighter who was too smart and of his long battle to live down a shady name. Gorilla Jones, former middle-weight champion of the world. Age 28. Height 5 feet, 9 inches. Weight 152. Charged with being a business fighter who could make any match look good.

"I got this crack at Freddie Steele's title New Year's day and that's goin' to make a lot of things," the brown-skinned Gorilla said today.

"If I didn't think I could win back the title they took away from me for some reason I never knew, I'd never climb in there with Steele. He's the best man I ever fought. But I got to get that belt back to make folks think right about me."

NCAA PUTS ALL POST CONTESTS ON BLACKLIST
NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(UP)—All post-season football games, including the Rose Bowl, Sugar Bowl and Orange Bowl affairs, were on the blacklist of the National Collegiate Association today.

The N.C.A.A. stand was taken in adopting the report of a committee appointed a year ago to investigate all influences adverse to the best interests of intercollegiate sport. Members of the committee were Prof. Z. G. Clevenger, Indiana, a. a. University, Chairman, H. H. King, Kansas State, and Prof. Philip O. Badger, New York university.

AT THE CLIFTONA
The two extremes in screen characterization—fresh, bubbling childish charm and a hard-bodied "sure-thing" gambler—are combined to make the most heart-warming film in many years—"Little Miss Marker," which with Shirley Temple in the starring title role, and Adolph Menjou heading the outstanding supporting cast, opening tonight at the Cliftona theatre.

Shirley, who plays the role of a little orphan deposited as "security" for a horse-racing bet, sings and smiles her way into the hearts of the most hard-boiled gambling combine on Broadway, changing the lives of an unscrupulous gang of racketeers and racing hangers-on.

Jack Holt in "North of Nome" is also on the same program.

AT THE GRAND
Like the proverbial firehorse who follows the engines when ever he hears them clang, Austin Parker, collaborator on Universal's screen play, "The Girl on the Front Page," could not stay in his office while the picture was filmed.

The now famous screen writer spent a number of years as a reporter on the old New York World and New York Tribune Parker, as a veteran newspaperman, was drawn as if by a magnet to the realistic newspaper city room set in "The Girl on the Front Page," which is now being shown at the Grand theatre.

AT THE CIRCLE
Straight from the day's headlines and as significant as an "extra" is "Exclusive Story," dramatic new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production teaming Franchot Tone and Madge Evans now showing at the Circle theatre.

Written by Newspaperman Martin Mooney, one of the most sensational vice crusaders of the time, it is a story shaped from the year's blackest headlines, many of them written by the author himself.

About This And That In Many Sports

Amateurs to Fight
Amateur fighters will go to work Jan. 18 under a plan arranged by the Athletic Club impresarios. Only youths in school will be permitted to compete, with a loving cup at stake.

The school with the best record will receive the cup. Jackson township's youngsters have a good start on their opponents with Shirley Hulse, Jimmy Seimer and several others in the pink of condition and gaining experience from week to week.

Not Kipke's Fault
Bill Braucher, Central Press writer, says the attacks on Harry Kipke as coach at the University of Michigan were started by a Detroit editor who became angered because Kipke's football articles appeared in an opposition sheet and helped to build up circulation.

"Kipke," says Braucher, "was a great coach three years ago and he's just as great now. Injuries, bad breaks and lack of material have pulled his Wolverines from their peak."

Carideo Does Well
Where's Frank Carideo, former Notre Dame star? you ask. Carideo, a flop as head coach at Missouri, is doing a good job as assistant to Major Ralph Sasse at Mississippi State. Mel Harder, Cleveland pitching ace, can hardly lift his right arm above his head; the fact he is a curve-ball pitcher might have something to do with it. Mickey Cochrane has taken a step that will bring many kicks from his athletes, but nevertheless will stand. He has ordered all squad members to camp without their wives.

We'd Use Few
Marquette's basketball team averages 6 feet 1 inch in height. How'd Coach Jack Landrum like to have a few of these boys on his Red and Black outfit.

TWO QUESTIONS ASKED

A BOSTON player asks two questions concerning the deal shown. Can East make a grand slam at no trumps? The opening lead is the J of diamonds. How can East know in advance how many tricks he should win?

♠ 9 7 6 4 3

♣ Q 5

♠ K Q 8
♥ 9 7 4
♦ J 10 8 8
♣ 8 6 2

Win the J of diamonds with dummy's Q, merely to keep the hands balanced. Count the number of tricks which declarer knows positively in advance, that he can win: 1 spade trick, 4 heart tricks, 3 diamond tricks and 4 club tricks, or 12 tricks total. The only suits in which an added trick may be obtained are spades and diamonds. As defenders have only two suits to guard, it should be obvious that only in case South holds both the K and Q of spades can a grand slam be made, as South cannot hold more than two cards total, after the eleventh trick. Watch proper offensive play to see what is meant.

Having won the first diamond trick, have declarer take four heart tricks. On the last heart trick have dummy discard its lowest spade. South also must make one discard. He may let go either a spade or a club. Suppose he lets go a club. Next run off three tricks in clubs. On the last club trick let go one of declarer's spades. South will also let go one of his spades. Win the next trick with declarer's Ace of diamonds. That will make the ninth trick. The tenth trick will be taken with dummy's K of diamonds. All players will be down to the three cards shown in the diagram below.

As South holds both high spades missing from the declaring hands, he now can be squeezed, by leading the Ace of clubs from dummy, and letting go declarer's last diamond. North cannot be squeezed, because he holds from the start nothing of value. South must let go his good diamond or one of his two high spades. If the diamond is let go, dummy's 3 will win the twelfth trick and declarer's Ace of spades will win the last trick. If South holds his good diamond, and lets go his Q of spades, then declarer's Ace-J of spades will win the two last tricks, by first playing the Ace.

Declarer could not know in advance whether a grand slam could be made. He should know, however, that a grand slam could be made, provided South held the two high spade honors.

COUNTY OFFICIALS ASK DELAY IN REAPPRAISEMENT

EXPENSE CITED IN REQUEST FOR STATE'S OK

Recent Farm Sales Show Value of Land Varies Little in Pickaway

COST ESTIMATED $14,000

Auditor, Commissioners and Treasurer Join in Action

The county auditor announced Wednesday he would send a request to the state tax commission soon asking that no reappraisal of real property in Pickaway county be made next year.

Forrest Short, the county commissioner and Robert G. Colville, county treasurer, are opposed to the reappraisal contending the expense would be about $14,000. They feel it would make little change in duplicate valuations.

The last reappraisal was made in 1925 at a cost of $15,768 to the county. In 1931 no reappraisal was made but a 10 per cent cut was made on the 1925 figures. Appraisements since 1925 figures have dropped 20 per cent in Pickaway county while in some districts of the state they have been lowered as much as 40 per cent.

Recent farm sales, officials explain, have brought prices that compare closely to present appraisement figures.

County auditors are the assessors of property and appraisals are required every six years. They are permitted to appoint field workers and other necessary employees to take care of the work. Funds for the reappraisal are taken from the county's general fund.

Remember Turkey Dinner at Boggs New Year's Day 12 to 2. —Adv.

Members of the Board of Education will meet Wednesday evening to consider bids for constructing and equipping the new addition to the high school and Corwin street buildings.

Work in the Master Mason degree will be given by Pickaway Lodge, No. 23, F. and A. M. on New Year's day at 3:30 p. m. A dinner will be served at 6 p. m. followed by an open house.

Miss Helen L. Foster, of Lakewood, field worker for the State division of public assistance, has resigned to become director of the Lucas county bureau of aid to dependent children. Pickaway county was included in her territory.

County commissioners and their wives and Auditor Forrest Short were entertained to a turkey dinner at the County home Monday by Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Mowery, superintendent and matron. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Rader, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. May and son, Roger, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wright, and Mr. Short. The dinner was a farewell event to Mr. Rader, retiring commissioner.

Pickaway county received $2,124 in the 7th distribution of motor vehicle license funds today.

WYOMING ACTS TO STAMP OUT JUVENILE CRIME

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UP) — Seeking to reduce the volume of juvenile crime in Wyoming, authorities have tossed overboard a merit system in the reformatory at Worland that permitted youths to go free within 11 months without regard to the seriousness of their crimes.

The state board of charities and reform changed its policies, Adolph Hanson, secretary, said in an effort to decrease the number of "repeaters" and to improve control over juvenile crime.

Under the former policy, each boy was required to earn 480 merits through good behavior and accomplishment of work before he could be released. The rule applied equally to all, no matter whether a youth had been sentenced for one year or for 20. The merits could be earned in 10 1/2 months.

The merit system will continue in effect, Hanson said, but in the future, each case will be decided individually. The board will consider the sentence imposed by the judge, the education and adaptability of the boy, and his behavior during his incarceration.

The board expects the new system to act as a strong deterrent to young criminals, Hanson said.

The boss of the family is the one who never has to explain what became of that $5.

000 ransom payment and was believed to have inspired the present crime.

Freezing weather had settled over the northwest and both the father and the mother, a prominent society and club woman, were nearing exhaustion from worry over their child. Charles had just had a bath and was lightly clothed when carried away. This added to their anxiety.

Mother Appeals

Mrs. Mattson, perhaps hoping that the same eyes that read the note signed Ann, might read more in the newspaper, inserted this notice in a Tacoma paper:—"Please save my boy from harm. Keep him warm. He has just had a severe cold."

The parents had divided the day into twelve hour shifts so that one would always be near the five special telephones installed in the Mattson home should the kidnaper call.

As the ad addressed to Mabel was inserted, the parents had appeared frantic in their efforts to gain contact with the kidnaper. Nothing had been heard from him since 9 p. m. Sunday when he terrorized Charles, his brother and his sister with a revolver, snatched up the child, and fled. Even the grandmother of the child, Mrs. Charles Fletcher, entered the case. She appealed to the kidnaper to use her as intermediary in negotiations with the father.

Later this tension was relaxed. Dr. Mattson said:—"I don't know anything about the advertisement, nor the reports that I have contacted the kidnaper."

Federals in Charge
"I have turned the case over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation and they are in full charge of the task of securing the safe return of Charles."

The Mattson home still was unguarded and G-men and police seemed to be staying away from the neighborhood to give the kidnaper a clear path to the parents.

Police activities had ceased except for running down reports and rumors of clues, all of which proved of little immediate value if not actually worthless.

The contents of the ransom note was closely guarded, but it was learned that it was signed "Tim."

This signature may provide an important clue to the kidnaper after the boy is released. Investigators pointed out that criminals in choosing pseudonyms unconsciously used racial names with which they had been familiar either by birth or environment.

The reports of clues sent investigators hurrying through Washington and Oregon. Almost all of them were of cars being seen containing a man and a boy.

that the pope's condition was not yet critical. But many priests on their own initiative offered special prayers in his behalf. Most people of Rome were unaware of the seriousness of the pope's condition because newspapers continued to assure the that he was not gravely ill.

But there was general pessimism around the vatican regarding the pope's chance for recovery. A report was spread today but not confirmed that his condition was so serious that he was not expected to survive the end of January.

NIMROD, 82, HUNTING FOR 67 YEARS, GETS LICENSE

Charles Emerine, 82, of Maplewood avenue, obtained his 1937 hunting and trapping license Wednesday morning from George Barnes, deputy clerk of court.

Mr. Emerine obtained his 1936 license on Dec. 30 last year. He has been hunting and trapping in Pickaway county since he was 15 years of age.

"I have always followed the rules and never had any trouble with the officers," he said. "I can remember when I used to sell muskrats for 10 cents and there were plenty of them. I'm pretty careful where I trap now and take no chances."

"If I'd slip in the water over my head I might have a little trouble getting out."
